

Rural Routes Through the Holy Thrive Where You Are

Rural Hope

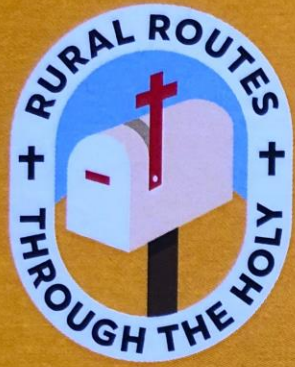

Do you hope for something?

What gives you hope?

What do you think God hopes for?

-

RuralFear

Rural Fear is the second in our series of six postcards, following Rural Hope.

While fear may not be a word we want to spend time with it's nothing to be ashamed of. If we look squarely at what makes us afraid in rural contexts we'll grow through our fear.

Let's do it.

What's on the address side?

"in a wonderful story I read about life in an old Irish village, the main character said, "I was too afraid of life to love it." Sometimes coming together helps us find courage. We hope that's what Rural Routes Through the Holy makes a place for. We hope these postcards also encourage you.

These are the questions on the back.

What are we afraid of?

Does it keep us from loving our life together?

Does it keep us from loving who we are and what we might become?

- Rural Stories
- Rural Lament
- Rural Neighbours
- Rural Joy

Let's meet at the shore, the permeable place where new things are shaped and new relationships made ~